Application for Edwin F. Ferris Class of 1899 Grants for Summer Internships in Journalism
Summer 2013

This program awards grants up to $3000 to Princeton students who undertake summer internships in writing, publishing and journalism, both print and electronic media. Our goal is to complement our journalism (JRN) courses by helping students acquire experience in newspapers, television networks and companies that publish books, magazines or other journals.

Internships must take place in a recognized media organization for at least six and typically eight weeks.

All Princeton undergraduates, including seniors, may apply for grants, but we encourage students to undertake internships in their first three years. Previous recipients of Ferris grants are not eligible to reapply.

The committee receives many more proposals than it can fund. Some of the criteria that weigh in the selection process are financial need, academic standing, and the potential benefits of the internship.

Deadlines: April 1 (Round 1) or May 1 (Round 2)

Print this form and submit it with the materials listed below to the Humanities Council, Joseph Henry House.

Checklist of documents to append:

1. A statement of up to 750 words describing the internship and how it relates to your academic interests and career plans. Specify the organization, the particular department in which you will be working, and any information you have about your particular responsibilities. Include a budget statement, describing any significant costs of the summer, such as commutation or lodgings away from home, and the grant amount you are requesting. Since financial need is taken into account in the selection process, you should indicate any special budgetary considerations that might not be apparent from other materials.

2. A letter or email from the organization, offering you the internship and stating the dates of employment, the name of the supervisor, the nature of the duties, and the training, supervision and financial support, if any, which the organization will provide.

3. A transcript of your University grades (downloaded from SCORE)

4. Signed Waiver of Liability form (downloaded from this site).
